

JUNIOR RANGERS

Some birds are bold and easy to spot, other are hard to spot, but easy to hear!
Close your eyes and listen to their song or sit quietly and watch out for birds...

Our fine feathered friends help maintain the balance of nature. When you keep a record of just what birds flutter by your window, you begin to understand how that balance works. Why not set a few minutes aside each day to keep track of which birds (and how many) call your house "home sweet home"? Make sure there is a water source available then sit back and enjoy the show, making sure to take notes on what you see and when you see it.

Birding in your backyard

Use your bird watching skills to spot these feathered friends. Look for movement and listen for bird songs. Tick each off when you find them and note how many you see in that day.

Where else do these birds live? Look in a bird book or search online to see where else you might find these birds. Shade their distribution on the map of Australia.
